Foreword

WHILE THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS LIBRARY'S HOLDINGS OF INCUNABULA are not large in comparison to the major American and foreign collections, the titles represented here include a good percentage of unusual and even unique items. Further, the section of fifteenth-century books at Illinois has grown substantially since the appearance of Stillwell's Second Census. These are sufficient reasons, perhaps, for issuance of another bibliography of incunabula, showing the resources of an individual library.

Bibliographers and students of literature will doubtless find of particular interest Mr. Faye's discussion of the cataloging of incunabula, wherein he proposes that future bibliographies emphasize the contents, rather than the technical features of these works. Intensive study of printing history for the past several centuries makes unlikely any sensational new discoveries in this field. From a subject-matter point of view, however, much remains to be revealed about early printing.

Professor Faye is bibliographic consultant and cataloger at the University of Illinois Library.

Note on the Cataloging of Incunabula

THE RESULTS OF PROCTOR'S METHODS, DEVELOPED AND SYSTEMATIZED by Haebler, particularly in his Typenrepertorium (1905-10), with Ergänzungsband I-II (1922-24), have put the identification of types on a surer basis, making much of the earlier work obsolete; but they have not, as yet, had time to appear fully in print. Some important works, based on these and other modern methods, and still in course of publication, will now be considered.¹

First mention must be made of the Veröffentlichungen der Gesellschaft für typenkunde des XV. jahrhunderts (1907-), as yet incomplete. This set complements Haebler's Typenrepertorium, for it consists of facsimiles of types arranged according to his system, thus providing concrete illustrations of the categories of his classification.

We are not concerned here with engravings as such, but an adequate treatment of typographica embellished with engravings must take into account their illustrations. In this field the published aids have not yet been completed. W. L. Schreiber's Manuel de l'amateur de la gravure sur bois et sur métal au XV^e siècle (1891-1911) in eight volumes (a new edition of the first three volumes, issued in four volumes, appeared in 1926-27) confines its treatment of illustrations in typographic works to the two parts of the fifth volume (1910-11) dealing with only Germany, Switzerland, Austria-Hungary and Scandinavia. Likewise incomplete is Der bilderschmuck der frühdrucke (1920-), the great set of facsimiles of illustrations begun under the supervision of Albert Schramm.

¹ One great catalog, embodying modern methods, is an exception in that its publication has been completed: Polain's Catalogue des livres imprimés au quinzième siècle des bibliothèques de Belgique, 4v., Bruxelles (1932). This work is not only useful on account of the considerable number of incunabula described in it (4109, a little less than half the number in Proctor's Index), but is also remarkable for its methods of description, which invest it with a charm of its own. While he is up-to-date in the use and application of scientific methods, the compiler also seems to be more than usually aware of what may be called the "personality" of the book being cataloged, and he communicates this to the reader in exceptionally detailed and lucid descriptions. Among its helpful features are the indices, which constitute a considerable part of the fourth volume. Of these indices the following may be noted: Vers anonymes. Rangés alphabétiquement par incipit (p. 595-600); Table des gravures, indiquées au cours du Catalogue (p. 433-449, with Encadrements on p. 449); then there is the Table générale (p. 451-594) of wide-ranging scope, including, for instance, information concerning dedicatees. It may be of interest to mention, as a sample, that under the entry Médicis (Laurent de), le Magnifique, we are told that among the incunabula located in Belgium, there are eleven containing, in all, thirteen epistles dedicatory addressed to this prince.

Finally, among the works still in course of publication, two great catalogs should be noted: Catalogue of books printed in the XVth century now in the British museum (1908-) and the Gesamtkatalog der wiegendrucke (1925-).

Haebler's characterization of the British Museum Catalogue is worth quoting:

Der British Museum Catalogue hat aber nicht nur in der Typenforschung sondern auch in verschiedenen anderen Richtungen ein Bild davon gegeben, wie die moderne Inkunabelforschung sich ihre Aufgaben zu stellen hat. Er wird nicht nur der buchtechnischen, sondern auch der literarischen Seite der Wiegendruckforschung mehr als irgend einer seiner Vorgänger gerecht, und bietet als Sonderkatalog einer einzelnen Sammlung ein noch nicht wieder erreichtes Vorbild. Er wird in gewissen Beziehungen wohl damit sogar dem Gesamtkatalog der Wiegendrucke überlegen bleiben.—Handbuch der inkunabelkunde (1925) 28.

The incunabulists at the British Museum, in evident conformity with a tradition originating in Proctor's activity there, reveal an extraordinary exactitude in identifying types. For example, in the entry for IB. 27125a (BMC 6: 631) there is the information that one quire and one sheet of another quire were printed in the type of a printer other than the one who printed the rest of the book (see no. 303). When identifying types has been the issue, the judgment of the British Museum Catalogue has, in the present book, been accepted in preference to that of other authorities, even to that of the Gesamtkatalog.

Haebler's remark, concerning the attention given by the British Museum Catalogue to the literary side of incunabula research, needs some qualification. This attention is given not so much to the literary content of any incunabulum being dealt with as it is to the literary and cultural circumstances surrounding its printing and publication. This aspect of the work done at the British Museum might be designated the "higher criticism" of palaeotypography.

The monumental Gesamtkatalog records, for each book cataloged, what has been published about its type and illustrations, giving also, when it seems necessary, its own judgment in these matters; it lists, within certain limitations, the owners of copies; and finally, it devotes more than the customary attention to the literary content, arranging, in a systematic classification based upon this content, the works of voluminous authors and the editions of anonymous works. Typical examples of its method are to be found under the following headings:

Augustinus, Aurelius (GW 2862-3048: bd. 3, col. 67-180);
Biblia (GW 4198-4324: bd. 4, col. 67-192);

Breviarium (GW 5101-5518: bd. 5, col. 1-527);
Donatus, Aelius (GW 8674-9038: bd. 7, col. 582-680).

Palaeotypography has advanced far since Proctor's day. Indeed, according to our present knowledge, it may be said to have gone so far that the end is in sight. The essential reference tools of the student of palaeotypography, so far as technical descriptions and facsimile reproductions are concerned, may be reduced to the following four works:

For the types: 1. (Technical descriptions) Haebler's Typen-repertorium, which, apart from possible future supplements, has been completed; 2. (Facsimile reproductions) the Veröffentlichungen der Gesellschaft für typenkunde des XV. jahrhunderts, which are not completed.

For the illustrations in typographic works: 3. (Technical descriptions) volume 5 of Schrieber's Manuel de l'amateur de la gravure sur bois et sur métal au XV^e siècle. As has been intimated above, additions are needed to cover the countries not included in the published two parts of this volume. 4. (Facsimile reproductions) Der Bilderschmuck der frühdrucke, which needs to be completed.

It would seem that the methods of palaeotypographic research have been satisfactorily established: all that remains is carrying out the investigations according to these methods, and, finally, putting an end to the work by recording the findings, once and for all, in print. Arundell Esdaile, writing as a British incunabulist interested particularly in the British Museum, sums up the situation in these words:

With the completion of this work [i.e. the Gesamtkatalog] and the British Museum's Catalogue most of the secrets of the experimental period of printing will be yielded up, and only special studies of small fields will be left to do. Bibliographers are already moving on to the sixteenth century . . . —A student's manual of bibliography (1931) 289.

Esdaile's estimate of the situation is to be accepted, because he writes of printing. However, in order to make clear what is here to be emphasized, let us insert, in the above quotation, the redundant word "typographic" before "secrets," making the relevant passage read: "most of the typographic secrets of the experimental period of printing will be yielded up." From these words there now emerges the implication that there are, in the fifteenth century books, other secrets besides those relating to types. Among these secrets are facts, more or less obscure, or at any rate unrecorded, relating to the literary texts preserved in incunabula. Much, as will now be shown, remains to be done in this field.

Not even the Gesamtkatalog has attained the same perfection in recording literary content as it has in accounting for typographic elements. It is careful to document its identification of types, whereas matters of authorship and the identification of texts are but rarely so meticulously established. In listing Contents, the Gesamtkatalog records only the first folio of a text; inclusive foliation should be given, for that prevents the omission of a text that might otherwise be overlooked. The initial and concluding words of unidentified texts should be recorded. Such details receive attention in the more careful descriptions of manuscripts. They should be taken into account also in cataloging incunabula, for the incunabulum, even if it is a printed book, still retains the textual form of the manuscript.

Here are a few examples of what appear to be shortcomings in the Gesamtkatalog. These instances are but part of the results obtained from the checking of its description in the Gesamtkatalog with the one incunabulum here considered, namely the Opuscula (Brescia, 1495) of St. Bernard of Clairvaux (GW 3907, no. 325 below). Two points will be discussed: authorship and identification of texts.

Authorship

Among the works listed under Pseudo-Bernardus in the Gesamtkatalog (bd. 3, col. 659–661) are the following, for convenience here numbered 1–3:

- (1) Canticum de sanctissimo nomine Jesu Christi [wirkl. Verf: Johannes Peckam].
- (2) Epistola ad Robertum nepotem.
- (3) Sermo de verbo psalmi Qui habitat in adiutorio Altissimi.

(1) Canticum de sanctissimo nomine Jesu Christi is the hymn beginning Jesu dulcis memoria, whose text is published in Migne's Patrologia latina, v. 184 (1854) 1317–1320. The ascription to John Peckham, archbishop of Canterbury, appears to be an error. C. L. Kingford's article on John Peckham in The Dictionary of national biography, v. 15 (1937–38) 635–642, makes no mention of any connection between this hymn and the English archbishop. The hymn does not appear in the section devoted to John Peckham in the Analecta hymnica medii aevi of Blume and Dreves, v. 50 (1907) 592–616,—cf. also v. 31 (1898) 111–114. There is no reference to Peckham in Reginald Vaux's article Jesu dulcis memoria in The Church quarterly review, v. 108, London (1929) 120–125. According to Julian's Dictionary of hymnology (1908) 585, the hymn, although there is no positive proof to that effect, is probably by St. Bernard. Buchberger's Lexikon für theologie und kirche, 5. bd. (1933) 328, sums the matter up as follows: "Jesu dulcis memoria . . . entstanden wohl im 13. Jahrh., ist seit dem 16. dem hl. Bernhard v. Clairvaux beigelegt, dessen Jesuismystik in dieser Dichtung hell nachklingt. . . ." It is safest to let the hymn continue to be listed under Pseudo-Bernardus, for there appears to be no definite evidence as to its authorship. The question, however, still remains unanswered: Why does the Gesamtkatalog attribute it to John Peckham? If the ascription were documented, it would not be necessary to ask.

(2) Epistola ad Robertum nepotem is one of the authentic works of St. Bernard. It is no. 1 of his Epistolae, cf. L. Janaschek, Bibliographia bernardina (1891) p. II–III, under II. Epistolae. It is so published (i.e. as the first of his Epistolae) in Migne, Patrologia latina, v. 182 (1854) 67–79. There is no apparent reason for removing it from his authentic works. Why does the Gesamtkatalog put it under Pseudo-Bernardus? Here again documentation is sought for in vain.¹

(3) Sermo de verbo psalmi Qui habitat in adiutorio Altissimi. The first word of this title should be Sermones (see below in the discussion of Contents, folios E^{5v}–I^{4v}). The work is authentic, cf. Janaschek, Bibliographia bernardina, p. II, under I. Sermones. Why does the Gesamtkatalog place it under Pseudo-Bernardus? Documentation is called for again.

Identification of Texts

Among the entries in the Contents of GW 3907 are the following:

b^{3v} Speculum monachorum.—b^{5v} De ordine vitae et morum institutione.

So far as they go, since only the first folio of the texts is indicated, these items are correct. The work between them, however, on folios b^{4v}–^{5v}, is omitted entirely. In the incunabulum itself it bears the title "Eiusdem materie epistola" and in the Patrologia latina, v. 184 (1854) 1173–74, it is published as Varia et brevia documenta pie seu religiose vivendi. Furthermore, the Gesamtkatalog ignores unidentified material at the end of De ordine vitae et morum institutione. It would have insured greater accuracy to have given inclusive foliation and to have recorded unidentified material, making the entries read:

b^{3v}-4^v Speculum monachorum.—b^{4v}-5^v "Eiusdem materie epistola" = Varia et brevia documenta pie seu religiose vivendi.—b^{5v}-c^{8r} De ordine vitae et morum institutione, with, at end, unidentified material, beginning: c^{8r} column 1, line 22 "Pars tua sumus domine"; ending: c^{8r} column 2 lines 13-14 "in quo compunctio."

Let us now consider, in the Contents of GW 3907, the entry:

E^{5v} Sermo de verbo psalmi Qui habitat in adiutorio altissimi.

There are seventeen in the collection of sermones by St. Bernard on this Psalm, cf. the text in Patrologia latina, v. 183 (1854) 185-254. Of these, sixteen are represented in the incunabulum. The entry would be more accurate if it were changed to

E^{5v}-I^{4v} Sermones in psalmum Qui habitat (15 numbered sermones: V-VI of the Patrologia latina combined and numbered V; sermo XV of the Patrologia omitted).

The Gesamtkatalog does, on occasion, document its identification of the texts cataloged, by citing the later editions that had been used for that purpose. Two such instances will be mentioned.

In its treatment of the Chronicon of Burchardus Urspergensis (GW 5737) the edition in Monumenta Germ. hist., Script. rer. germ., v. 58 (1916) is cited, and, using it as the basis for comparison, the title in the incunabulum is shown to be misleading and peculiarities in its text are indicated.

In the case of the Sermones of Ephrem Syrus (GW 9331-9335), since it seems that no Syriac edition has ever appeared, the Greek edition of Ephrem's works, published in Rome (1732-46) is set up as the standard for comparison; and, on that basis, it is indicated which of the sermones are in each of the incunabula cataloged.

The results of documenting every statement relating to the identification and description of types are evident, and they justify the method. Is it too much to demand that a similar technique, which would consist of the setting-up of a later, preferably modern, edition, as a standard of comparison, be used for documenting the statements made in the cataloging of the texts? Such a method would make the cataloging more accurate. The text of the book, which is its dynamic element, is, or should be, in most cases, more significant than the vehicle—the physical book, consisting of binding, paper and type impressions—by which the text is brought to us.

The two main problems, which interlock, are determining authorship and identifying texts. Usually a good edition will be adequate for solving both these problems. The bibliographer, as such, can not be expected to enter as an original contributor into the fields of higher and lower criticism. On the other hand, it is part of his work to use and to record or cite the findings of literary critics. By training, acquired knowledge, and skill, he should be equipped to make catalogs and bibliographies of such a nature that scholars would find them useful, time-saving, and reasonably accurate. The bibliographer should be the bookkeeper of literary criticism.

Let us return to a concrete problem: the cataloging of the works of St. Bernard of Clairvaux. For purposes of documentation, reference and comparison the requirements indicated above could very probably be met by placing the following two publications at the beginning of the section dealing with the works of St. Bernard.

Janauschk, Leopold. Bibliographia bernardina . . . Vindobonae (1891). Lists items published to the end of 1890.

Bernardus Claravallensis. . . . Opera omnia . . . editio nova . . . accurante J. P. Migne, 4v. (1854-55). (Patrologiae cursus completus . . . series latina. v. 182-185)

If, in the cataloging of the works ascribed to St. Bernard, any other documentation besides that afforded in these two works should be needed, that should also be cited.

Could such documentation be provided for works whose content has been so little appreciated that they have not been propagated in later editions, and have no literature extant about them? Obviously not. In such cases, the cataloger would usually have to accept the text in the incunabulum as the authentic one, and he would perhaps, but not necessarily, have to accept as reliable the internal evidence, if any, in the incunabulum itself as to its authorship.

It would take us too far afield to discuss in detail the problems involved in making a catalog attempting to do justice to the literary content of incunabula. It may not be amiss, however, briefly to touch upon some of them.

It would be necessary to decide upon the books needed as the standards of reference and comparison to be used for documenting the statements of the catalog. The compiler would have to solve that problem for each incunabulum. Here is just one sample of what is available as an aid in this matter. The Index volume (1904) of the Thesaurus linguae latinae provides a selective bibliography of editions suited for these purposes in a field heavily represented among incunabula, namely the field of classical Latin literature.

The form of author-entries is important. In the Second Census "author-entries conform to Hain—excepting in instances where both BMC and GW agree to a common revision of spelling, or to re-assignment" (St p. xii). Uniformity as to the form of author-entries has not been attained. Would international agreement on this point be worth the effort involved in attempting to attain it?

Should Latin be used as the language of the catalog? Latin might be convenient, since most of the title entries would be in Latin anyhow, no matter what language was used. Latin is internationally neutral, its use would preclude preferring one modern language to another. Would it be desirable to return to Latin?

One other point will be touched upon: the scope of such a catalog. Should it be international, or national, or should it confine itself to the holdings of one library (preferably a large one)? Sir Charles S. Sherrington advocates the compilation, under the auspices of the United Nations, of a world catalog of incunabula, with the headquarters of the undertaking located in London.¹ It would be a pity if circumstances should conspire to prevent the completion of the publication of the Gesamtkatalog. If the United Nations or some other agency should eventually be able to produce a world catalog, the Gesamtkatalog would be very helpful in the making of such a catalog and, with the other great catalogs, it would always have its place as a valuable (and, at times, as an indispensable) reference work.

Summing up: no matter how incidental problems are solved, it is inevitable that if the cataloging is to be adequate, the literary content of incunabula must be given at least as much attention as the typographic element has been receiving.

¹ See his letter, entitled "International scholarship," in The Times literary supplement for May 17, 1947.

To the Reader

THE GENERAL ARRANGEMENT OF THIS BOOK IS MODELED AFTER Incunabula in the Hanes collection of the Library of the University of North Carolina (1940) compiled by Olan V. Cook. Among other works, also arranged according to the method of Proctor's Index, the following have been helpful: Incunabula in the Huntington library (1937), compiled by Herman Ralph Mead and listing 5291 items of the magnificent collection in that library; A check list of fifteenth century books in the Newberry library and in other libraries of Chicago (1933), compiled by the Chicago incunabulist, Pierce Butler; and Check list of fifteenth century printing in the Pierpont Morgan library (1939), compiled by Ada Thurston and Curt F. Bühler. Miss Stillwell's Second Census, as is abundantly evident on following pages, has been indispensable throughout.

An attempt has been made to record the printers or presses represented in the Illinois collection, and to account for every printed leaf (leaves without print have been ignored).

Through the references to Stillwell's Second Census the user will generally be led, by means of the catalogs there cited, to more or less adequate information concerning any particular incunabulum. In the case of defective copies, it is hoped that the accounting for the printed leaves will give information as to what is actually in the book and what is missing. For instance, in the entry for Regula monasticorum (no. 267), it is indicated that ff. 179-214 are lacking; St R129 leads to BMC 5: 542, where we learn that these leaves contain the Rule of St. Basil (ff. 179 [seq.]) and the Epigrams of St. Gregory Nazianzen on St. Basil (f. 214).

Acknowledgment is made to Dr. Robert Bingham Downs, Director of the University of Illinois Library and Library School, for the work was begun at his bidding and carried on and completed under his aegis. The helpful cooperation of members of the Library staff merits grateful mention. I am particularly beholden to Alice, my wife, for her self-sacrificing and faithful labor in the indispensable work of typing and preparing the manuscript for the press.
